1. The villages of Stojakovo and Selemi make up the community of Stojakovo. The village of Stojakovo has about 360 families, and Selemi has about 25 families. The population of the community is Orthodox, except for about 50 Catholic families in Stojakovo. The Chairman of the community was Antefelis Karagoshev, the Secretary was Raiko Ivancev, and the Treasurer was Georgi Peev. Mito Jankulov and Lazar Stankov were employees of the Community Council. Gligor Traikov was the Political Secretary of the 30-member Communist Party cell in Stojakovo, and Lazar Stankov was the Organizational Secretary and Treasurer.
2. The collective in Stojakovo was established in March 1949. The local peasants were not forced to join the collective, and consequently only 80 families joined the collective. When informants left, the collective had 8 working brigades, 350 sheep, and 19 cattle. The collective had one old 3-ton Peugeot truck and one old Ford tractor. To irrigate the fields the collective had three water pumps which were driven by Austrian Varsilovski (sic) fuel motors.
3. Working members of the collective received 15 kilograms of corn per month, old people received 12 kilograms, and children received 7 kilograms. In 1950 working members of the collective received 117 dinars per day.
4. The chairman of the collective was Gligor Traikov, the bookkeeper was Todor Karcarov, the treasurer was Mileva Peev, and the warehouse attendant was Stoian Girov.
5. Work on the construction of offices and stables for the collective was abandoned in 1950.
6. A certain Goncev was the priest at the Catholic church in Stojakovo. Kiril Avramcev, a Catholic priest from Bogdanci, was imprisoned in Idrizovo prison.
